

Between Star and Dust

A whisper drifts through silent skies,
as if the world had heard my cries.

I feel a light that softly stays,
it knows my silence, hidden blaze.

A part of me grows still and wide,
as if time moved from side to side.

A sound unfolds inside the deep,
and leads me where the stars still sleep.

